Wisconsin Department of Revenue Updates Its Web Presence

The Wisconsin Department of Revenue has launched a new website as it strives to provide outstanding customer service and to make the taxpaying process easier for individuals and businesses.

Revenue.wi.gov features a new design which is cohesive with the Wisconsin.gov state portal and other state agency sites.

"For the users of the site, it will be faster and more helpful and provide a better overall experience. This project is just one of the ways that DOR employees provide outstanding customer service to those we serve," said Secretary Richard Chandler.

The site features updated styling and a mobile-first design allowing content to be accessed from any device. Agency staff can immediately update web content without requiring technical web developer resources, since the site leverages a web content management system that does not require technical expertise to use.

Revenue.wi.gov was built at no cost to the state or its citizens through a public-private partnership between the State of Wisconsin, the Wisconsin Department of Administration, and Wisconsin Interactive Network, LLC, a subsidiary of NIC.
