- A physician determines that the disability (a) has lasted or can be expected to last continuously for at least a year; or (b) can be expected to result in death.

2022 Schedule 2440W Instructions

Purpose of Schedule Persons who receive disability income may be able to exclude a portion of it from their taxable income. Complete this schedule to determine the amount, if any, of your exclusion.

What is Disability Income Generally, disability income is the total amount you were paid under your employer's accident and health plan or pension plan instead of wages for the time you were absent from work because of permanent and total disability. However, any payment you received from a plan that does not provide for disability retirement is not disability income.

Who Can Exclude Disability Income You can take the exclusion for 2022 if you meet ALL these tests:

- You received disability income which is not otherwise exempt from Wisconsin tax.
- You were under age 65 at the end of 2022. (If you were born on January 1, 1957, you are considered to be age 65 at the end of 2022.)
- You retired on disability and were permanently and totally disabled when you retired. (See "What is Permanent and Total Disability?" below and instructions for Physician's Statement on page 1.)
- On January 1, 2022, you had not yet reached the age when your employer's retirement program would have required you to retire.
- For any year prior to 1984, you did not choose to treat your disability income as a pension instead of taking the exclusion.
- If you were married at the end of 2022, you must file a joint return.
- You were a Wisconsin resident when you received the disability income.

If you meet these tests, you can take the exclusion until the earliest of the following dates:

- (1) The first day of the tax year in which you turn 65. (If you were born on January 1, 1957, you are considered to be age 65 at the end of 2022.)
- (2) The day you reach the age when your employer's retirement program would have required you to retire.

What is Permanent and Total Disability? A person is permanently and totally disabled if (1) they cannot engage in any substantial gainful activity because of a physical or mental condition, and (2) a physician determines that the condition has lasted or can be expected to last continuously for at least a year, or can be expected to result in death. An activity is considered substantial if it consists of duties that are more than those of a nonproductive, make-work nature. An activity is considered gainful if it pays at a rate at or above the minimum wage. The examples below show substantial gainful activity. In such cases, the disability income exclusion cannot be taken.

Example 1: Sue, who was a sales clerk, retired on disability. Sue now works as a full-time babysitter earning minimum wage. Although Sue does different work, Sue babysits on ordinary terms for the minimum wage. Sue cannot take the exclusion because Sue is engaged in an activity that is both substantial and gainful.

Example 2: Mary, president of the XYZ Corporation, retired on disability because of a terminal illness. On Mary's doctor's advice, Mary works part-time as a manager and is paid more than the minimum wage. Mary's employer sets the days and hours. Although Mary's illness is terminal and works part-time, the work is done at the employer's convenience. Mary is considered engaged in a substantial gainful activity and cannot take the exclusion.

Specific Instructions

Line 1 Fill in the amount of disability pay included in your federal adjusted gross income, less any amount that is otherwise exempt from Wisconsin tax (for example, retirement payments received from the U.S. government that relate to service with the Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, or the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service).

Lines 2a and 2b You can exclude either your actual weekly disability pay or $100 a week, whichever is less. Your weekly pay is your total yearly pay divided by 52.

Line 2c If you received disability pay for part of a week, follow the steps below.

Step 1. Divide $100 by the number of days a week you normally worked before you retired.

Step 2. Divide the disability pay you received by the number of days it covered in that week.

Step 3. Compare the Step 1 and Step 2 amounts. The smaller amount is your daily rate. Your exclusion for the week is based on it.

Step 4. Multiply your daily rate by the number of days you received disability pay in the short week. The result is your exclusion for that week.

Step 5. Add your exclusion for that week to your exclusion for any other short weeks. Fill in the total on line 2c.

Disability payments are made for part of a week when one of the following happens after the first day of the taxpayer's normal workweek:

- (1) The disability retirement begins.
- (2) The disability retirement ends because the taxpayer reaches required retirement age.
- (3) The taxpayer dies.

Line 5 Generally, the most a person can exclude is $5,200. This exclusion goes down, dollar for dollar, by any amount over $15,000 on line 5a.

Generally, no exclusion is left if line 5a is –

- $20,200 or more, and one person could take the exclusion.
- $25,400 or more, and both spouses could take the exclusion.

Physician's Statement If you did not check the box on line 9 of Schedule 2440W, you must have your physician complete a statement of permanent and total disability. You can use the statement on Schedule 2440W for this purpose. However, if you are filing federal Schedule R and your physician completed a Physician's Statement for use with that form, you may submit a copy of that statement instead of completing the physician's statement on Schedule 2440W. If both spouses take the exclusion, each must file a statement. If you retired on disability before January 1, 1977, the physician's statement must show that you were permanently and totally disabled on January 1, 1976, or January 1, 1977. If you retired on disability after 1976, the physician's statement must show that you were permanently and totally disabled when you retired.

If the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) certifies that you are permanently and totally disabled, you can file VA Form 21-0172 instead of the physician's statement. VA Form 21-0172 must be signed by a person authorized by the VA to do so. You can get VA Form 21-0172 from your local VA regional office.
